

Gasoline prices drop to $2.56 average in Oklahoma—lowest in the region

“Gasoline prices drop to $2.56 average in Oklahoma—lowest in the region” okenergytoday.com, 25 June 2018.

Gasoline prices have dropped in the past week in Oklahoma’s two major cities but for those drivers in the northwest part of the state, they’re paying averages ranging from $2.72 to $2.86 a gallon. The national average is $2.85, down 5 cents from a week ago.

AAA Oklahoma reports the state’s average is $2.56 a gallon, a drop of four cents over the past week. GasBuddy reports a 2.5 cent a gallon drop in Oklahoma City where it says the average is $2.45 a gallon. AAA Oklahoma says the Oklahoma City average is $2.52 a gallon, down 3 cents from last week.

GasBuddy bases its $2.45 gallon average on a survey of 669 stations in the Oklahoma City metro.

The highest prices are found in northwest Oklahoma where Ellis County has an average of $2.86 a gallon. Roger Mills and Dewey counties have averages of $2.81 while the average in Beaver County is $2.74 and drives in Woods pay an average of $2.75.

The city of Lawton continues with the cheapest gasoline at an average of $2.52, a one cent drop from last week. Tulsa’s average is $2.50 a gallon, down 9 cents over a week.

Of surrounding states, Oklahoma is lowest. The average in Texas is $2.66 while drivers in Kansas pay an average of $2.65. Missouri’s average is $2.63 and the average in Arkansas is $2.58. Colorado’s average price is $2.84 a gallon while New Mexico has a $2.90 average.
